

SCHLEY, THE VICTOR OF SANTIAGO, HAS NO PLACE IN THE PARADE, BUT WATCHES IT FROM AFAR, PERCHED ON THE ROOF OF A TOWERING HOTEL. ALL READY FOR THE GREAT LAND PARADE.

To-day the City Gives Its Welcome to the Hero of Manila—Presentation of a Cup—Sailors' Smoker at Night—Other Doings.

When Admiral Dewey comes ashore at the Battery to-morrow morning he will find an escort of dashing cavaliers waiting to receive him. The cavalcade will start at once for the City Hall, where they are expected a little before 9 o'clock.

Mayor Van Wyck will then present to Admiral Dewey, on behalf of the city of New York, a great loving cup of solid gold. The Admiral will also listen to the singing of national anthems by 2,500 children, selected from the schools of the city, and carefully drilled for the occasion. It will be one of the most picturesque sights of the day.

Leaving the City Hall the Admiral's mounted escort will conduct him to the foot of Warren street, where the steamer Sigsbee Hook will take him to Claremont. There he will place himself at the head of the parade. While the presentation is going on downtown preparations for starting the procession on time will be in active operation around Grant's Tomb.

The troops will rendezvous in Broadway, Claremont avenue, Amsterdam avenue, Columbus avenue, and in the numbered streets between West One Hundred and Sixteenth and West One Hundred and Twenty-sixth. They will move through One Hundred and Twenty-second street to Riverside Drive to Seventy-second street, to Central Park west, to Fifty-ninth street, to Fifth avenue, to the south side of Washington square, where they will be dismissed. The column will move at 11 o'clock, and, according to General Roe's calculation, its head will reach the arch at Twenty-fourth street two hours later, including the naval battalions from the Olympia and the North Atlantic Squadron there will be about 34,000 men in the marching column.

Bands have been provided for the Olympia's battalion and the sailors and marines from the North Atlantic Squadron. No music will be furnished for out-of-town troops, but many organizations, especially those which come as regiments or battalions, will have bands of their own. The arrangement of the bands and of the floats who ride in carriages was made yesterday by the Reception Committee.

The procession will start in this order: Platoon of two companies mounted.

Grand Marshal, Major-General Charles F. Roe.

Grand Marshal's Staff—Colonel Stephen H. Olin, Lieutenant-Colonel Frederick Plummer, Colonel Edward H. Hoffman, Lieutenant-Colonel William C. Sanger, Lieutenant-Colonel William W. Laid, Jr., Lieutenant-Colonel N. B. Thurston, Major William M. Kirby, Lieutenant-Colonel John H. Holly, Lieutenant-Colonel Clifford H. Terry, Colonel Nelsom H. Root, Major J. E. Leigh, Lieutenant-Colonel John Bogart, Alder-de-camp—Major Louis M. Grey, Major John B. Holland, Drum-Major Hughes.

Behind them will come Admiral Dewey, and riding with him will be Mayor Van Wyck.

Four carriages will follow, containing Dewey's captains and his personal staff, and the command's carriage containing Rear Admiral Howland and President Guggenheimer, of the Municipal Assembly. In the next carriage will be Rear Admiral Sampson and President Woods, of the Board of Aldermen.

Twenty-one carriages, with various naval officers, come next, and following them will be twelve carriages containing Governors of States, accompanied by committee-men. After three carriages, containing the members of the Special Reception Committee, there will be two carriages, one of which will be Major-General Miles and aide and in the other Major-General Merritt and aide.

In the next carriage will be Rear Admiral Schley and Miller.

Other carriages follow, and then will come the Naval Brigade of the North Atlantic Squadron, followed by the four companies of marines, and following them, in order named, will be the men from New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland, South Carolina, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana, Mississippi, Maine, Florida, Texas, DIST. OF COLUMBIA.

The Naval Militia of the State and Old Line come next, followed by the four companies of marines, and following them, in order named, will be the men from New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland, South Carolina, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Ohio, Indiana, Mississippi, Maine, Florida, Texas, DIST. OF COLUMBIA.

Next come three regiments of Pennsylvania troops, headed by Governor Stone and staff.

New Jersey follows, with Governor Voorhees in the lead, and then come the Georgia troops, commanded by Colonel Lawton.

Connecticut follows with a detachment of the National Guard, the Governor's Foot Guards, the Governor's Horse Guards and other organizations.

General Rollins, of New Hampshire, at the head of six companies, and Governor Russell, of North Carolina, with two companies, come next.

Ohio follows, with Governor Bushnell in the lead. There will be two regiments, several independent companies, and a battery, Indiana follows, with a battery.

Adjutant-General Henry, of Mississippi, and two companies are next. Then comes a signal corps from Maine, several companies from Florida, one from Texas, and two battalions from the District of Columbia.

General O. O. Howard leads the final division, which consists of many organizations, unnamed.

The procession will form on Riverside Drive, the Boulevard, Amsterdam avenue and intersecting streets.

There will be repeated halts in the march to enable the organizations to keep up a long distance.

The following streets will be kept open to allow the passage of ambulances: Fifty-ninth, Forty-ninth, Forty-third, Thirty-seventh, Thirty-ninth, Eighteenth, Thirtieth and Tenth.

At the reviewing stand near the Dewey Arch the Admiral and Mayor Van Wyck will review the procession. When Washington square is reached the parade will disband.

After supper on board the ship this evening the Olympia's crew will land at One Hundred and Tenth street and will march to the elevated station at One Hundred and Fourth street. From there a special train will take them to Thirty-third street, and from there they will march to the Waldorf-Astoria to attend a "smoker."

The great concert room of the hotel will be filled with small tables and there will be a large orchestra. The program will be upon except in the case of the closing number, which is to consist of patriotic selections and singing by Cal Stewart, in the character of Uncle Sam, delivering Joe Kerr's poem, "Hello, Dewey," assisted by Miss Frances Lee, soprano, the assembly being asked to join in the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

Admiral Dewey is promised to be present, and so are Rear Admiral Sampson and Schley and many of the fleet officers.

Barthold Hotel from 11 until 1 o'clock and relieve the monotony of waiting for the parade to reach the reviewing stand.

In the evening Faneuil's band will play at the same place from 7 o'clock until 11.

YACHTS FORMED A MIMIC WAR FLEET.

Conspicuous Among Those in the Great Parade Were E. C. Benedict's Onaida and Col. Payne's Aphrodite.

The scenes at the New York Yacht Club rendezvous at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street after 8 o'clock was a bustling one. Launches with stern whistles tooted and bumped against their docks, while their crews shouted at other boats; drivers cried for room; the cabs, hansoms, coupes, victorias and landings of the millionaires rolled up.

The yachts seemed the little war ships of a white squadron. Bunting flew from all their peaks and masts, and nearly every one of them had a string of flags running from bow to stern over the masts, while great flags fluttered at the main masthead and stern.

Among the most striking were the Aphrodite, Colonel Oliver Payne, the Hiawatha, J. Fleischman, the Baltimore, J. Nicholas Brown, the Virginia, S. H. Baisden, the Onaida, E. C. Benedict, and the Neara, Charles A. Gould, with Frank Gould on board.

VISITING TROOPS ARE QUARTERED ALL OVER.

Baltimore Cracks in the Lenox Lyceum—Armories as Hotels—Some Ohio Soldiers Stick to Their Trains.

An army of over thirty thousand men was entertained by the city yesterday, representing every section of the country. From an early hour the soldiers marched through the city streets from the various railroad depots and docks to the armories, halls of temporary homes where they had been billeted for their stay in town. Although the soldiers were the idol of the occasion, the military, from the highest commanding officer to the latest recruit, received the kindest attention.

The arrangements made for the housing and comfort of visiting comrades by General Roe and his staff were perfect, and there were but few minor changes in the assignment of quarters. Very shortly after the visitors had arrived at the armories their commanders dismissed them for the day.

The quartermasters and commissary officers were kept for a few hours to arrange matters, but all the others were left to their own sweet will and they wandered to every quarter of the city and its suburbs, sightseeing, calling and making friends.

Officers seemed to devote their time to the Broadway and Fifth avenue section, where the clubs were open to them; others joined parties to view the river parade. On every side, in every street, uniforms were in view.

The ranks and files straggled, men from the West mingling with those of the North and South; those from the plain and ranch with those of the cities. The boys had their quota of admirers, and all sorts of attractions were offered specially for the occasion.

All the variety theatres were in gala attire and every programme had its share of songs appealing to the American "Tommy Atkins."

Many of the visiting soldiers carried cameras and secured souvenirs of their visit thereby. Others patronized the stores and bought gifts for friends at home. Not a few of the soldiers made the trip to Coney Island. Many of those from inland places carried marine glasses.

Pennsylvania's Big Force.

Pennsylvania alone sent five regiments, averaging a strength of 700 men each—the First, Second, Third, Ninth and Tenth. The First are guests of the Sixty-ninth New York until Monday morning, when they will return home. The Second Pennsylvania Regiment is at Everett Hall, on East Fourth street, in the city. The Tenth Pennsylvania is at the State Superintendency, at the Eighth Regiment Armory is the Third Pennsylvania. The Ninth Pennsylvania is at the Twelfth Regiment Armory, twelve full companies, under Colonel C. Row Dougherty. The Tenth Pennsylvania will arrive this morning with Lieutenant-Colonel Barnett in command. Yesterday this regiment was feted in Philadelphia, where a cannon captured in the Philippines was presented to it.

At the Eighth Regiment Armory are the Corcoran Cadets and Company A, of the Washington Light Infantry, of the District of Columbia. Captain Evans arrived in the afternoon at the armory with Company H, of the Fourth Maryland Regiment, and the Mountain Guards of the District of Columbia.

Colonel James H. Lloyd, with 1,000 men of the Second New York, comprising companies from Troy, Albany and other up-State cities and towns arrived in the morning and put up at the Twenty-second Regiment's armory, on the Boulevard. They will go home on Sunday morning. Until then they will have as fellow boarders the five companies which will represent Florida in the parade.

Quartered at the West Side Lyceum are separate companies from New York towns as follows: Thirty-ninth, of Watertown; Fortieth, of Ogdensburg; Twenty-eighth, of Albany; and other up-State cities and towns arrived in the morning and put up at the Twenty-second Regiment's armory, on the Boulevard. They will go home on Sunday morning. Until then they will have as fellow boarders the five companies which will represent Florida in the parade.

Patrick Gleason Celebrated in Jail.

Former Mayor Patrick Jerome Gleason walked around Long Island City yesterday wearing in a conspicuous place on his coat the official badge and medal of the Executive Committee of the Dewey Celebration, of which he is a member. He could not go to New York to join his fellow committee-men in the reception to the Admiral because he could not leave the jail limits of Queens County, to which he is confined by law.

Fifth Maryland at Lenox Lyceum.

Comfortable quarters were found by the Fifth Maryland Regiment, of Baltimore, at the Lenox Lyceum, on Madison avenue. Their uniforms closely resemble that of the New York Seventh Regiment. There are 600 rank and file, fifty of a band and fifty officers, commanded by Sergeant F. J. Marko. They will leave for home to-night after the parade. The Fourth Maryland is at the Forty-seventh Regiment armory, in Brooklyn.

For the second time in its history the Seventy-first Regiment has as its guests the Sixty-fifth New York, from Buffalo, 500 strong, under Colonel Samuel L. Welch. At the same armory are the following separate companies: Forty-second of Niagara, Thirty-ninth of Jamestown, Forty-third of Olean, Twenty-ninth of Medina and the Twenty-fifth of Tonawanda.

On East Fourth street has been found accommodation for several organizations. The Second Pennsylvania are at No. 35 and the Indianapolis Light Infantry at the same place. The latter company rested its guns at No. 418 East Eighteenth street. At the same place the First Rhode Island is making its headquarters. At No. 68 East Fourth street are the following: South Carolina troops, Washington Light Infantry of Charleston, Captain Cossack; the German Fusiliers of Charleston, Captain Schroder; the Sumter Guard of Charleston, Lieutenant Miller; the Irish Volunteers of Charleston, Captain McGinness; the Tamworth Light Infantry of Florence, Captain Kelly; the Sumter Light Infantry, Captain Lee; the Greenville Light Infantry, Lieutenant Davis; the South Riders of Pelzer, Captain Woot; and the Richmond Volunteers, Captain Kirtland.

Shortly after noon the Seventy-fourth Regiment, from Buffalo arrived and marched to the Fifty-first Regiment armory, on Fourteenth street, accompanied by the following separate companies: Forty-seventh of Cornwallville, Forty-eighth of Oswego; Forty-first of Syracuse; Thirtieth of Elmira; Twenty-ninth of Medina; Second of Auburn, and First of Rochester.

Ohio Men Stick to Train.

Although quarters had been set aside for the Fifth Ohio, 600 men, they will live on the special train on which they came to Communipaw by the Baltimore & Ohio, having brought rations and cooks with them. Colonel C. X. Zimmerman is in command. Battery B of the same State will do likewise, but Separate Company E of Middletown, another from Zanesville and one from Wilmington, Ohio, will be quartered at No. 68 East Fourth street.

The Fifth Ohio on arrival went to Harlem Hall, at Lexington avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, where they were given a dinner. They were accompanied by a band of forty pieces.

Three hundred men of the First New Hampshire Regiment arrived on the steamer Providence and went at once to the Miner Theatre Building on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street.

Battery H of Cincinnati is at the New Jersey National depot, where the members of the same State are located.

The Waycross Rifles of Georgia, with the Thomsville Guards and the Savannah Cadets, are at the Fourteenth Regiment armory in Brooklyn.

Mississippi Rifles and the Waltham Guards of the same State are located.

At the Erie freight depot the Sixth Battery of Brighton is sheltered, with its five guns.

Dewey Day in Santiago.

Santiago de Cuba, Sept. 2.—The Americans in Santiago de Cuba celebrated "Dewey Day" this afternoon. The Government buildings and the residences of Americans were gayly decorated. There was a miniature naval parade of yachts and tugs, together with a general blowing of whistles and a discharging of cannon crackers. This evening an elaborate display of fireworks was carried out on lighters in the harbor. The arrival of numerous Americans since the raising of the quarantine made the celebration possible.

Washington Officials See the Parade.

The distinguished party that boarded the Government tug Catherine E. in Jersey City, to be transferred to other boats from which they viewed the water parade, included Mrs. Ellen Root, wife of the Secretary of War; Assistant Secretary of War Melvin John, Captain E. R. Harris, Marine Superintendent of Army Transportation, Quartermaster-General Ludington, Assistant Quartermaster Colonel Burke and a number of ladies.

MIGHTY WELCOME FROM JERSEY SHORE.

Salute After Salute for the Nation's Hero and Miles of Flags and Bunting Affluter.

Along the Jersey river front, from Bayonne to the Bergen County line, there was one continual ovation for Admiral Dewey and the Olympia. The other war ships in line were not forgotten, however, for the Chicago, New York, Texas and the rest received many a cheer from lusty throated Jerseyites. Blasts from railroad and factory whistles and the ringing of bells also added to the din.

As the parade started from Tompkinsville one of the first objects seen by those aboard the war ships and other vessels was an American flag flying from a pole 140 feet high at Bayside Park in the Greenville section of Jersey City. From that point, as the Olympia passed, was fired a salute of seventeen guns, a tribute from the citizens of Jersey City. Salutes were also fired at the foot of Communipaw avenue, foot of Morgan street and foot of Morris street. The guns were in charge of Lieutenant John Pringle and squads from the Fourth Regiment, N. G. M. I.

Hoboken had two guns at the foot of Hudson Square Park, one in charge of Lieutenant Pringle and his squad, the other in charge of a detachment of the Boys' Brigade, under command of Brigadier-General Charles Laws. Each fired seventeen rounds. Other salutes were fired from the heights of Weehawken, Union Hill and Guttenberg. At Communipaw the piers of the Central Railroad of New Jersey and Lehigh Valley were handsomely decorated with flags and bunting.

"Castle Point," the home of the Stevens family, on the bluffs overlooking the river walk, was profusely decorated with flags and bunting, and at night the grounds were ablaze with electric lights. There was also a display of fireworks. The Stevens Battalion fired a salute as the Olympia passed.

POLICE READY FOR THE HUGE PARADE.

Devery's Army Prepared to Protect the Millions of Visitors.

THIEVES SCARCE NOW.

One Hundred and Twenty Professionals Now Repose at Police Headquarters.

Chief Devery is sure that his great army of policemen will be able to take care of the millions of persons who will try to see the land parade to-day. The entire force will be on duty day and night, and every possible arrangement has been made to guard against accident or the depredations of criminals.

In his general orders the Chief says: "The officers along the line must pay special attention to stands, and see that order is preserved there, and that the comfort, convenience and safety of citizens thereon is secured. The throwing of lighted matches or cigar or cigarette ends underneath the stands, especially where there may be paper or rubbish, is a very dangerous practice, and must be prevented."

"See that balconies and fire escapes along the route are kept free and clear from lumberances. In some cases these fire escapes are apt to be overcrowded by persons witnessing the parade. Such incurrence of fire escapes is a violation of law, and at this time is particularly dangerous, and must be prevented."

The Chief calls attention to the fact that many counterfeit tickets for grand stands are being issued and sold and instructs his men to try to find and arrest the perpetrators of this fraud. Up to last night 120 known crooks had been locked up at Police Headquarters "for safety," as Captain McChesky put it—referring to the safety of the public. The Information Bureau is preparing for plenty of work to-night, by which time many inquiries for lost persons are to be expected.

Any person looking for a lost friend, or child, should report at once to the Information Bureau, Police Headquarters, No. 300 Mulberry street, whence a general alarm will be at once sent out to detect found should also be taken to Headquarters.

FIREWORKS FLOAT WAS IN FLAMES.

Skyrockets and Roman Candles Make It Hot for the Crew Till the Blaze Is Put Out.

The fireworks float Mars, loaded with fireworks, took fire when off the foot of Fifty-ninth street, East River, last night at 8:40 o'clock, and instantly blazed up.

The fire was started by the sparks setting fire to a tarpaulin which was used to cover a lot of skyrockets Roman candles and the like, and the explosives were sent flying in all directions.

This float and another were in tow of the tug King. The Mars was in charge of Captain Ole Davidson and was owned by C. E. Harris, of No. 140 Broad street. A Lewis, of the Palms Fireworks Company was in charge of the display, but neither he nor any of the crew saw his assistants appeared to know much about putting off fires, as the minute the hose was brought aboard from the tug Patrick Cain, on which was Police Inspector Trovok and a squad of men, the crew and Lewis's men tried to jump into the water.

Policeman Schreiber grabbed the hose and put out the blaze. Several other men who came from the tug Cahill left the tug to swim, they finding it too warm for them. What fireworks remained on board were ruined and the float Mars settled in the stern. The Cahill then took her in tow and headed for the Battery.
